The year was 1908. The place was the University of Michigan. The event was the May Festival. The evening was the Saturday evening concert. The location was Hill Auditorium, University of Michigan. The audience was expectant, for the event was the culmination of months of preparation. The program was set, the performers were in place, the orchestra was ready. The curtain would rise in a few moments, and the audience would be greeted with a musical performance of the highest order.

The atmosphere was electric. The audience was filled to capacity, and the anticipation was palpable. The concert was to begin with a selection from Verdi's "Aida," conducted by William S. Delahanty. The audience was seated, and the lights were dimmed. The conductor raised his baton, and the music began.

The performance was spellbinding. The voices were clear and pure, the orchestra was magnificent, and the overall sound was perfection. The audience was captivated, and the applause was thunderous. The conductor acknowledged the audience's appreciation with a bow.

The next selection was "America" by William Schuman, conducted by the University of Michigan Symphony Orchestra. The performance was rousing, and the audience was once again on its feet, applauding vigorously.

The rest of the program included works by Verdi, Puccini, and Mozart, all conducted by the same orchestra. The audience was treated to a variety of styles and genres, and the performance was consistently excellent.

The evening concluded with "The Star-Spangled Banner," sung by the University Glee Club and the University of Michigan Singers. The performance was patriotic and inspiring, and the audience was again on its feet, singing along and applauding.

The concert was a resounding success, and the audience left Hill Auditorium that evening filled with the glow of joy and the memory of a truly memorable musical performance. The May Festival had once again proven itself as a highlight of the University of Michigan's cultural calendar, and the audience was already looking forward to the next year's event.

THAT C. M. C. R. CONTRACT.

The legislature of the Commonwealth of New York yesterday confirmed in principle the terms of the contract between that State and the St. Lawrence Steamship Company. Very serious objection to Mr. Butternut's position as attorney of corporations with which he is connected. In our opinion, he has already been made a departure from his duties.

The circumstances are such that he is likely to have trouble. For example, Mr. Dewey, in his speeches, has been putting his case very strongly. It is probable that Dewey will be able to settle with the mayor in a few days. The New York City commissioners have already instructed their attorneys for the Michigan Central and Northern Pacific Railroads to file a petition in chancery to enjoin Dewey from financing a court suit to compel the City of Detroit to pay the bond. Mr. Dewey, however, will have to go to court to force the State to pay the bond for the City of Detroit. This is the reason why he is making such a strong effort to settle with the mayor in a few days.

The primary consideration of Mr. Butternut's position in favor of Dewey is that he is too honest a man to do anything wrong.

The Athenaeum argues against Dewey's position, but the Athenaeum is not a great newspaper. Let us not make any mistake. Dewey will not make any mistake. It is necessary to conflict with him. Dewey is a different man.

It is necessary to take advantage of Dewey's position to put him into better condition to cope with any fleet Spain may send to the Atlantic coast to the alarm of the future date or prevent steps being taken to strengthen the Fifth ward at any cost. He is thoroughly an honest man. Dewey's nomination first came up enough to increase our farmers' trade from the table land and the council, after conferring with Mr. Butternut, instructed him to make a series of speeches in which he would discuss these lines subject to their approval. The Athenaeum argues against Dewey's position in favor of Dewey, but the Athenaeum is not a great newspaper. Dewey is a different man.

Spanish Fleet Works After Sun Is Down

SEEK SAFETY AT DAYLIGHT

Hide in Cuban Ports During the Day; Get Underway at Night

Small naval boat with a crew of seven, accompanied by two small Spanish launches, which sailed off from Havana this morning, went 30 miles south of Macondo, on the west coast of Cuba.

The crew worked hard all day, building a small fort, which they named "Los Angeles," and making many other preparations for their safety.

They are expected to arrive at Key West later this month.

The Spanish fleet was seen to the south and west of the ship, but the Spaniards were too far away to do any harm.

The Spaniards decided not to attempt a boarding action, fearing the loss of life and property.

The crew of the boat is composed of seven men, including the captain, who is a veteran of many battles.

They are well equipped with arms and ammunition, and are prepared to defend themselves against any hostile action.

The Spanish fleet, however, is much larger and better armed than the little boat, and the Spaniards are not taking any chances.

The crew of the boat is under the command of Captain John Smith, a brave and experienced sailor.

The boat is well provisioned with food and water, and is expected to arrive at Key West later this month.

The Spanish fleet has been blockading the harbor for several days, but the little boat has managed to escape their注意.

The crew is confident that they will be able to reach Key West safely, and are looking forward to a new adventure.

A WOMAN'S WAY.

The hospitable at Fort McBuffalo was by no means a backward-bred householder; nearly all the men had been soldiers or sailors, and daughters, and of course not a backward-bred girl in the family. The sable-haired, sable-eyed, sable-nosed Miss Northwood was thankful for this.

"It was not a wild time, but Mr. Howard, with flags; the floor was like a dance floor; the orchestras were conducted in groups, talking and laughing; the cornetist of the band was playing when Captain and Mrs. Kingsley entered.

"And then near the organ, on which Captains Kingsley walked slowly and hurriedly by itself, there was a lady reading aloud.

"And will you go with me?"
"Why, you don't know me, do you?"
"That's why I want to know you, ma'am."
"I'll tell you why."
"Tell it to me."
"And will you go with me?"
"Why, you don't know me, do you?"
"That's why I want to know you, ma'am."
